Welding and Cutting Apparatus

THE small portable A-C Welder has opened up new fields for welding wherever electric power is available, and for most of this work an electric grinder will do for preparing and finishing, and where compressed air cannot be obtained an air compressor set can be driven from the source of power supply. A list of such jobs daily encountered are:

Boiler repairs in factories and industrial plants, such as welding leaky flues, welding cracks or patches, staybolts or rivet leaks, or leaks around doors or corners. Boiler repairs on industrial locomotives and marine boilers. Heating boiler, radiator and piping repairs in place, caused generally by freezing, corroding or old age. Repairs to ships in dry-dock or ties up, such as leaky rivets or caulking edge, corroded corners and plates—rivet heads to be burned off for redriving. Deck and ventilator leaks, oil and water tank leaks, or port holes corroded.

Repairs in factories and plants of broken machine parts, tools, engines, compressors, pumps, vats, tanks and containers of all sorts.

A Logical and Economical Publicity Service

The man who makes a reliable product, who perfects the channels of distribution and plans an effective sales policy, knows that the sale cannot be completed without the vital factor of publicity.

To tell the public—to create a demand and by repetition keep reminding, to place the sales message and facts about the product or services before selected groups of known prospects and direct the buyer to the seller is the function of efficient advertising.

A Universal Reference Medium

Since its inception in 1891, Hendricks Commercial Register, "The Original Publication," has supplied reliable lists and information as to sources of supply in the field of Electrical, Engineering, Manufacturing, Mechanical, Constructional, Chemical, Railroad and allied industry and has provided a direct and efficient medium for placing detailed facts relative to the products and services of the leading firms of the country squarely before prospective buyers at the very time they want and are looking for this information.

It is the medium of no waste circulation. The very nature of the book makes it sell only where it will be used. Purchasing Agents, Business Executives and Department Heads, Engineers and Plant Superintendents, Architects and Contractors—the men whose decisions mean contracts and orders—refer to Hendricks Register hundreds of times a day. All advertisements occupy special positions adjacent to the lists he consults. Thus the advertiser gets 100% attention when and where he wants it. It is the logical "tie-up" with the general publicity campaign.

A Monthly Reminder

Supplementing the specific reference data in the Annual Register, Hendricks Commercial Bulletin, issued monthly to all subscribers, provides an opportunity for advertisers to make timely announcements and special offerings or to present serially the essential selling points of their products or services. It acts as a constant reminder to the buyer when his mind is most receptive. It contains only specific buying information. There is no diverting editorial matter to distract the buyer's attention.

Completes the Merchandising Cycle

Through these two publications the desire created by advertising in the monthly is crystallized into action at "the point of purchase" when the Annual Register is consulted for buying information. This combination of creative and reference advertising completes the merchandising cycle through logical and economical publicity.

Personal Service

Subscribers to Hendricks Publicity Service receive the "Confidential Advance Bulletin" containing live trade inquiries—actual business opportunities —two to three weeks prior to publication in the Monthly Bulletin; assistance in preparation of copy suitable to the annual and monthly publications and co-operation of Hendricks Service Bureau and Staff of Field Specialists in putting them in touch with prospective buyers.

Write for additional details as to personal service, copy Confidential Advance Bulletin sent to advertisers only, advertising rates, etc.

(Copyright, 1922, by S. E. Hendricks Co., Inc.)

30th Edition NEW YORK, AUGUST, 1922 Number 7

Monthly Trade Review

A summary of conditions in the field of Electrical, Mechanical, Constructional, Chemical and Allied Industry, compiled from authoritative sources.

THE two leading factors in the business and industrial situation are the coal strike and the railroad strike. Real shortage of coal and freight cars, due to these causes, is slowing up industry to a great extent. Fortunately the buying and selling of goods holds up well despite the threatened difficulties in production and the normal summer decline in activities.

Business failures have dropped from 1,960 to 1,740 in the past month and the number continues to decrease from week to week, although it is still higher than in the year 1913, when 1,320 failures were reported for the same period. The stock and bond market prices are fluctuating within a narrow range and have shown considerable buoyancy in the face of the strike crises. There is little probability of a strong advance here during the summer, however, and the danger of a sharp reaction has not entirely passed.

Bank clearings have increased for the current month; freight car loadings, previous to the strike, have increased; railroad earnings for the same period have advanced; crop prospects are very favorable; and commodity prices are on the rise. These factors still further reflect the advance of the entire business and industrial world to a better mark.

The Coal Situation

Coal prices have not stayed within the limits suggested by Secretary Hoover, but because of the shortage have gone over these limits. Within the past two weeks the shortage of coal has become acute, partly because of the July 4 holiday and partly because of congestion of loads at the non-union producing fields. Those buyers who waited until after July 1 to obtain the reduced shipping rates have found that the higher prices of coal have cancelled the 10% reduction in rates.

The market was most active lately in the Middle West. Prices seemed to be no factor in that territory; the main desire being to get coal. Not only were the small consumers clamoring for tonnage, but the railroads and large users were being forced to replenish their supplies on the spot market. A panicky feeling now prevails throughout the Northwest. Commercial supplies at Duluth-Superior are less than 550,000 tons of soft coal and 250,000 tons of anthracite; the latter being of the less wanted sizes. New England coal sales are increasing, but large consumers still have good supplies on hand. So many diversified demands are being made on the fields supplying the Hampton Roads piers that prices are stronger.

The outstanding feature of the coal strike in the past week was the preparation of certain large Pittsburgh district producers to resume operations at once, under guard. Labor shortage is beginning to be felt in Alabama, where peak production is fast being approached. The anthracite supply is running down, despite the indifference of consumers.

The Mechanical Field

When the rail and coal strikes are over it is anticipated that the railroads will be generous buyers of machine tools. Despite present conditions, some of the roads are already buying; one having placed orders within the past week amounting to $75,000. In the New York area the past month has shown the best sales in a year and a half, exceeding those for May, which set a record since the depression began. Chicago, besides reporting the railroad buying increase, finds many other industrial lines either buying or ready to place orders.

New England sales have marked time, owing to the holiday, the closing of shops for inventory and the effect of the strikes. Pittsburgh remains slow, with a moderate turnover. In Cleveland orders for single tools are holding up well, most of them coming from automotive plants, with a growing preference for new rather than second-hand tools. Automotive demand has also stimulated sales of the Milwaukee houses; and also improvement is noted in orders from agricultural implement, gas engine and tractor plants. Not only is the bulk of orders growing, but buyers are ordering more than a single tool at a time.

The metal working plants themselves have slowed up to a certain extent and more anxiety over supplies is being manifested by both producers and consumers of iron and steel. This is occasioned primarily by low stocks on hand and by the congested condition of the mills due to their heavy obligations, which is making deliveries more and more uncertain. To this has been added the serious stage which the coal strike has now reached and the possibility of transportation delays due to the shopmen's walkout. Actually the latter is not a mere possibility, for already embargoes have appeared at several points.

Virtually famine conditions exist in certain iron and steel products, notably in nut and rivet rounds and in forging bars. Steel bar bookings at Chicago run into the fourth quarter and the leading producer is accepting additional orders at its convenience and without delivery price.

The Electrical Field

A certain decline in sales of radio materials and apparatus has been noted, but the slump has not been as severe as expected. If conditions hold as well as at present the autumn sales in this branch should surpass those of last fall.

Wire is moving well, although price competition is fairly keen and some small recessions are noted. The lamp trade continues brisk, notwithstanding the short nights and daylight saving handicap. Considerable flood-lighting is in use in connection with business building construction and the trade in automobile headlights continues active. Business in the smaller size motor market is fair, large orders being recorded in the Western districts. Central station business improves, money for extensions and improvements is easier to secure. Most large companies are carrying out comprehensive construction programs.

In New York the demand in the electrical trade is holding up well and jobbers are reporting a satisfactory volume of sales for this time of year. Wiring supplies are moving steadily. Quotations on flexible armored conductor are a little easier and lamp cord is slightly lower than the last price quoted. Sales to industrial users have continued and this class of business appears to be gaining headway as summer advances. Fan sales are also showing renewed activity, owing to the sustained warm weather.

Seasonal variations have created a slight slump in the electrical trade in Chicago, but jobbers are pleased with the way calls for wiring materials have kept up during the past two months. Prices on conduit are considerably firmer because of lowered stocks. The call for rubber-covered wire and armored conductor has fallen off slightly. Another active month has been reported by manufacturers of high tension equipment. The motor market is improving, since practically all manufacturers report a steady volume of business on motors under ten horse power. An active demand for safety switches, both small and large sizes, has been noted.

The Construction Field

Apparently there is no summer decline in building activity this year; the contracts awarded and building under way continue their steady increase. New building operations are developing in New England at a rate that insures peak construction for almost an indefinite period ahead. Work of this character, covering both residential and business structures, is just about double the amount of new construction during this same time a year ago. It is believed that this rate of gain will be maintained throughout the year.

The five boroughs of Greater New York continue to pile up high construction totals, and at this mid-season of the building year there is more work on hand and in prospect than the industry locally can handle comfortably. There is a heavy demand for men and materials, and with no surplus of these available there is a resulting slowing down, each operation to wait its natural turn.

The hot weather has brought encouraging continuance in construction operations in New Jersey, despite the fact that figures of current weeks are less than those registered in the opening weeks of the season. Activities, however, are using all available labor and are making heavy demands upon brick and other burned clay products, so the situation sizes up satisfactorily. The final weeks of June brought exceptional daily figures at the Philadelphia building department. Although statistics for the month have not been compiled, it is expected that they will show record-breaking proportions.

There is no decrease in operations at Baltimore, and heavy construction continues both in residential and industrial work. The weekly average is running in excess of $600,000 for all classes of buildings. The records of the building department of Columbus, Ohio, during the month of July broke all previous records for that month in the number and valuation of permits granted.

The Chemical Field

The New York chemical market during the past weeks has been of a desultory character in general. With the exception of a few commodities there were no features of outstanding interest. Arsenic, tartaric acid, calcium acetate, copper sulphate and ammonium sulphate showed considerable activity, with quotations in some instances fractionally higher. Prussiates, caustic potash, caustic soda and soda ash have revealed no appreciable changes and quotations were subject to slight shading on firm business.

There have been no signs of any special interest in the crude and intermediate coal tar markets. Large producers of crudes reported a steady call from the various consuming industries, with no particular advance or decline along the list. The intermediate market remained in a very dormant state, due to the absence of real interest from domestic buyers. Textile mills have been operating upon an extremely conservative basis of late.

During the past two weeks activities in the St. Louis industrial chemical market have been somewhat quiet, but this is only to be expected at this time of the year. This lull will probably not prevail for as long a period as in previous years, as stocks of many items are still being carried on a minimum basis and replacements must be made more frequently. The tone of the market remains quite steady, with a few advances in prices. Imported chemicals are inactive.

The caustic soda market has been rather quiet; small quantity purchases are about nominal, with nothing of a carload size in sight.

Hydraulic Hot and Cold Plate Presses

To meet the demand for press for forming small electrical insulating parts from various dielectric compositions particularly for use in the construction of radio apparatus are manufactured by the Hydraulic Press Manufacturing Co. of Mount Gilead, O.

Hydraulic Press Mfg. Co. Press

The molding operation, which involves heating of the material to make it plastic, and the application of pressure to cause it to conform with the contour of the die is performed with the H-P-M Hot Plate Press. The plates may be heated by the circulation of steam, by gas flames or by electrical resistance units.

The second part of the operation which usually requires the cooling of the material, while still in the die and under pressure may be accomplished with the H-P-M Cold Plate Press. The plates are chilled by the circulation of water.

There are several different H-P-M Press systems which may be used to follow out the foregoing operations, namely: 1. Double Opening, Square Platen Presses, for removable dies, with upper plates used for heating and lower ones for cooling. II. Single Opening, Square Platen Presses, for removable dies. Used in batteries of three: two with hot plates and one with cold plates. III. Single Opening, Rectangular Platen Presses, with fixed dies. Arranged for alternate heating and chilling with the same plates.

These presses are built after standard designs, and are of the four rod, upward pressure type. They may be furnished with any required number of openings; however, we illustrate one and two opening presses only in this bulletin, as these are the types most generally used for molding work.

CONSTRUCTION

The cylinder is of open hearth steel casting, bored with a deep throat to provide a rigid guide for the ram. The cylinder packing is the best grade of "U" leather or "U" rubber, as may be specified, inserted in a counterbored space at the cylinder opening, and retained by a steel gland. With this construction, the packing is very accessible, and is easily adjusted. The ram is close grain gray iron, turned and polished over entire length. The stripper cylinders are steel; gland packed. Used to split the die on the cold plate presses only. The press bed is formed by lugs cast at the corners of the main cylinder. The press head is open hearth steel casting, heavily ribbed. Semi-steel for sizes rated under 100 tons. The platen is semi-steel casting. Cast with shoes at the four corners, which are babbitted and bear on the strain rods. Thus a second guide is provided for the moving parts, which makes the press very sturdy and rigid. A thick layer of asbestos is used to insulate the platen from the lowest plate which rests upon it. The heating and chilling plates are special H-P-M construction. Made of heavy rolled steel plates, with drilled passages. Machine-finished all over; working surfaces polished. Connections may be made either through swing joints or flexible metallic tubing, as may be specified. They may be machined with slots for holding the dies. Such an arrangement is usually necessary for the cold plates in order that pressure may be applied to split the die. The strain rods are rolled machinery steel, turned and polished.

A Self-Opening Stud Setter

The Geometric Tool Co., of New Haven, Conn., has put on the market a new self-opening Stud Setter, known as the "Jarvis," which is equipped with Morse Taper Shanks, and is adapted for use on a drilling machine, air drill or electric drill. They are made in two styles, positive and friction, and in four sizes, Nos. 1½, 2, 3 and 4. Size No. 1½ has capacity from 0 to ½"; shank, Nos. 2 or 3 Morse Taper. Size No. 2 has capacity from 0 to ⅞"; shank, Nos. 3 or 4 Morse Taper. Size No. 3 has capacity from 0 to 1¼"; shank, Nos. 4 or 5 Morse Taper. Size No. 4 has capacity from 1" to 2"; shank, Nos. 4 or 5 Morse Taper.

When the positive style stud setter is used it is necessary to have a stop collar around the stud that is being set. This serves as a stop to release the jaws when the stud reaches bottom. The stop on the spindle of the drilling machine will serve for this purpose. There is a downward travel of about 1-16" in the jaws necessary between the instant that the stop is met, and that at which the jaws will release.

With the friction style stud setter the stop collar is not necessary, but may be used at the preference of the operator. The large cone friction on the top of this style tool may be adjusted by manipulation of the lock nuts which control the adjustment. By loosening the lower lock nut, the upper one may be adjusted to give sufficient gripping power to drive the stud. When the upper lock nut is adjusted, the lower nut is again tightened, locking the upper nut in place. When the stud being set with the friction stud setter reaches bottom, the proper adjustment of the friction will allow it to slip, at which time the operator, by a quick upward motion of the feed handle, releases the jaws and frees the stud.

Jarvis Self-Opening Stud Setter

New Bed Pan Sterilizer

The Barnstead Manufacturing Co., of 62 Washington Street, North, Boston, Mass., has put on the market a new Bed Pan Sterilizer, that does away with the old and unpleasant method of having the operator touching a valve with their hands, and automatically produces a sterile Bed Pan. This apparatus is constructed of 30-ounce copper, thoroughly tinned on all internal parts and heavily nickel-plated on the exterior parts, mounted on an aluminum painted iron stand with bronze floor plates.

A heavy bronze steam chest forms the bottom, and is so arranged that it drains at the center through a 2½". opening. It has a dome-shaped cover attached to the back with heavy bronze hinges operated by a foot lift. The top of the apparatus is reinforced with heavy bronze castings which drain toward the apparatus and prevents any boiling over.

This apparatus is equipped with a spray head rising from the center of the bottom from which the bed pans are washed out on the inside, and a continuous spray entirely around the apparatus for the purpose of cleansing bed pans on the exterior and also washing out the sterilizer. Both of these sprays are controlled by foot operated valves, thus doing away with the operators touching any valve with their hands. It has a 2" vent in the back of the apparatus, and also two protected shelves suspended from the cover where the bed pans are to be placed for sterilization after they have been washed. These shelves are protected by a shield from the boiling substance below, thus preventing them from being stained again during the sterilization. This apparatus is equipped with a quick opening throttle valve with the necessary steam valves, and requires 3" waste, ½" steam and return steam, ¾" water supply. It is 20" long, 15" wide and 2" deep.

Square Spice and Cereal Set

A set of six-hinged cover spice boxes and six cereal boxes have just been put on the market by the Metal Package Corporation of New York, 509 Fifth Avenue, New York. Both spice and cereal cans are decorated in blue and white, with a delft design on all four sides and cover.

New Spice and Cereal Set

This design is baked on, which assures a permanent finish. The edges are hemmed, which makes the tops smooth.

The spice boxes are 2½ inches square by 3⅜ inches high, and carry labels as follows: Nutmeg, Ginger, Pepper, Cloves, Allspice and Cinnamon. The cereal boxes are 4 inches square by 5¾ inches high, and are labelled as follows: Oatmeal, Coffee, Sugar, Rice, Tea and Barley. The spice boxes are papered and nested in the cereal cans, and the latter are enclosed in a corrugated shipping carton.

The Hauck Asphalt Surface Heater

The Hauck Manufacturing Co., 136 Tenth Street, Brooklyn, N. Y., has put on the market two different sizes of asphalt surface heaters for the resurfacing and patching of asphalt roads and streets.

Hauck Asphalt Surface Heater

The heater is well balanced, and easily moved wherever desired. It is simple to operate. Burners operate with kerosene (coal oil, petroleum). Each burner is controlled and operated individually by a valve and can be easily removed for cleaning. Flame enters the hood fully developed and produces a uniform heat. The flame does not strike the pavement directly, thus avoiding burning of the asphalt. On hot days, one of the burners may be shut off. The tanks can be quickly refilled. On the No. 487 Heater one tank may be filled while the other is feeding the oil to the burners, without stopping operation. To facilitate transportation, especially for export, the heater is furnished with detachable hood, upon request.

"Little Giant" Pipe Wrench

The "Little Giant" Pipe Wrench, a new wrench with several interesting improvements, has just been put on the market. It has the "end opening" feature, which is familiar to users of machinists' wrenches. Its application to pipe turning can readily be seen by a glance at the accompanying picture. An advantage the "Little Giant" wrench has is the ease with which it can handle pipes in corners, close to walls, and similar confined places. The user can set it straight on the pipe as he would a pair of pliers, instead of having to fit the jaws on from the side.

This wrench has only three parts; a handle and jaw in one piece, which is drop forged and heat treated; a movable jaw, likewise drop forged and heat treated and a hardened steel nut. There are no springs, rivets, frame or pins, all these parts being eliminated. In spite of the absence of springs it takes hold and releases instantly at the option of the user.

Another feature is the double set of teeth on the main jaw. The movable jaw can be engaged at the option of the operator with either of these sets of teeth with consequent lengthened life. On the large sizes, 14" and greater, two additional sets of teeth are provided, making four in all, and the movable jaw can be reversed to engage these additional sets of teeth, which are below the adjusting nut.

The "Little Giant" Wrench is manufactured in 8, 10, 14, 18 and 24" sizes, of which the three smaller sizes are already on the market. The new wrench is a product of the Greenfield Tap & Die Corporation, Greenfield, Mass.

A Noiseless Rotating Check Valve

The Corry Valve Co., of Corry, Pa., announces a Noiseless Rotating Check Valve for water, steam and oils, which, it is claimed by the makers stops all pounding and hammering.

The valve is composed of three disks of various diameters made of special non-corrosive spring bronze, ground true on both sides to insure a perfect fit. The two lower disks have holes drilled in them as shown in the illustration. These holes give the much desired cushioning effect. The upper disk is left blank so that when the disks are all down the liquid or gas is completely cut off. The seat is made of hard bronze, is removable and renewable. The standard valves will withstand a working pressure of 250 lbs. per square inch.

A Correction

In the July issue of the BULLETIN the address of the John T. Fairhurst Co., manufacturers of folding partitions, was incorrectly given as Jersey City. It should have been Newark, N. J.
